and Bryan Beauchemin

A photograph of three people standing on a stone path in front of a large, modern house at dusk. The house has large windows and a covered porch with columns. The lighting is warm, suggesting sunset or early evening. The three individuals are dressed in professional attire. The man on the left is wearing a blue blazer and khaki pants. The woman in the center is wearing a patterned blazer and dark pants. The man on the right is wearing a dark blazer and light-colored pants. The background shows a well-maintained lawn and some landscaping.

LYNBROOK OF ANNAPOLIS

Celebrating 30 years in the industry, 2024 brings fresh breezes to Lynbrook of Annapolis, founded in 1994 by Ray Gauthier and Bryan Beauchemin. Gauthier has retired and Meredith Hillyer is at the helm as president, accompanied by a longstanding leadership team: Beauchemin, co-founder; Dennis Ulrich, vice president; and John Gaver, partner. Hillyer's rise is no surprise—at eighteen, she interned at Lynbrook, hauling lumber and learning framing. Right after college, she joined the team officially, sharing its passion, observing skilled carpenters, and appreciating what it truly takes to create exquisite award-winning homes, each different from the last. Lynbrook is also expanding to include a service division, Lynbrook Legacy, to work with new and past clients alike. Lynbrook's core mission, to build homes of exquisite quality, with a commitment to value remains stronger than ever. As one homeowner says: "Thanks to Lynbrook for making us part of your family. You have been there since the beginning. It's more than price and the delivered product. It's a lifelong relationship."
